You're a startup who is taking off, I'm looking to take off myself

First impressions are important, and I'm hoping this letter will stick with you. I pride myself in being really creative, very fast paced, and proactive. I consider myself to be obsessed with programming as well as art and design. I am hungry for experience and projects where I'm creating and coding beautiful, easy to read, responsive websites.

While I don't have too much measured experience working with marketing I have my current internship, and I also promote my personal art journey on instagram and facebook, and I believe that social media growth happens through providing quality content and giving followers things to benefit from. When it comes to marketing, I believe in making things instantly recognizable, not trying to reinvent the wheel, and sending a clear call to action.

I've been working a lot with adobe creative cloud, figma (where I'm designing this), wordpress, and react.js this year. I'm admittedly a bit new to the field, but that just means I'm willing to work hard to prove myself and learn as I go. Anyways, thanks for reading through this, cheers.
